PREFACE

This research work entitled "Annotated bibliography of theses completed in the Department of Library Science, University of Dhaka from 1959 to date", is being presented in partial fulfilment of the requirements of the M. A. Degree Examination of 1981 in Library Science of Dhaka University.

This bibliography has been compiled out of 290 theses, bibliographies, indices completed in the Department of Library Science of Dhaka University. Among other objectives an attempt has been made to make an inventory with annotations.

Though limited in scope the usefulness of such a bibliography need not be overemphasised. This bibliography is indicative rather than exhaustive.

I am confident that this work will be of immense value to the students and teachers of Library Science and Library Professionals. This work will help the forthcoming students of the Department of Library Science to pick, choose and select their research topics.

The annotations given will tell much more about the works listed. Of course, it cannot be foretold about the limitation of the annotations. These annotations should not be regarded as review of the works in proper sense. In most of the cases I have simply echoed what the author has professed in the preface or introduction of their works. In some cases, where the titles are self-explanatory, brief annotations has been given and in some cases where titles are most expressive of the content of the work I did not attempt to give any annotation. As regards works which were not physically available, I prepared a list of missing works from secondary sources.

Now I like to say something on arrangement, entry, compilation and some other necessary information for the convenience of the users.

Arrangement:

This bibliography has been arranged first chronologically then by subjects and then alphabetically by authors. Works are classified according to DDC number under each session/year.

It is necessary to note here that the classification numbers mentioned with the theses/bibliographies were given by the authors and university library. Although I do not agree with the classification number given in some cases still I did not change or reclassified them.

Entry Word:

The entries have been made under author(i.e., author entry), and as the authors of the works listed are all Oriental the entry words are arranged according to 'IFIA supplement to names of persons, 1978'.

The word 'Bengali' in parenthesis after some titles statements indicates that the work was done in Bengali language.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I am grateful for being assigned with such an important and valuable work by my revered and learned teacher, Mr. A.K.M. Shamsul Alam, Associate Professor and former Chairman of the Department of Library Science, University of Dhaka. His kind and constant help, advice and able guidance has made the preparation of this work possible. I express my heartfelt gratitude to him for all which he did for me in this regard.

I express my heartfelt gratitude to my respectful teacher and guide, Mrs. Afifa Rahman, Assistant Prof., Department of Library Science, University of Dhaka, for her sincere guidance, supervision, inspiration, co-operation and encouragement in the preparation of this bibliography. Without her persistent help and guidance it would not have been possible on my part to complete and bring this work to light.

I also express my gratitude to my respectful teacher, Mr. Sarwar Hossain, Assistant Professor and Chairman, Department of Library Science, University of Dhaka, for his constant help, valuable advice and sincere co-operation in the preparation of the work.

I am grateful to all my teachers in the Department of Library Science, University of Dhaka, for their unreserved help and blessings.

I gratefully acknowledge and take the opportunity to express my thanks to Mr. Ataur Rahman, Mr. Abdul Kader Talukder and some other friends for their sincere help and co-operation.

INTRODUCTION

With the passing of time gradual development of culture and civilization the human knowledge is fast spreading in various branches. Knowledge is disseminated through books and other reading materials. In this super-sonic age due to development of science and technology and the invention of printing press millions of books and other reading materials i.e., journals, periodicals, pamphlets, newspapers etc. are being produced everyday. So, the volume of printed documents in any field of knowledge or subject has been increasing in such a magnitude that it is not possible for any reader to review regularly and consistently the huge mass of publications that could be of importance to him. Time is another barrier - though each individual reader develops his own methods for keeping himself abreast of the important literature in his own personal areas of interest and does some regular reading himself, he cannot spend much time as it would take to cover all the publications that might contain information important to him. Bibliography is an important tool which help a reader to find his desired information from these mass of publications. It not only gives information about his desired publications but also gives an idea about the work and amount of work in the area. It acts as liaison between books and users. Bibliography is the most important tool to disseminate information, and to facilitate the identification and location of literature in the subject areas. A complete idea about the work included in the bibliography can be gathered if it is an annotated one.

INTRODUCTION

With the passing of time gradual development of culture and civilization the human knowledge is fast spreading in various branches. Knowledge is disseminated through books and other reading materials. In this super-sonic age due to development of science and technology and the invention of printing press millions of books and other reading materials i.e., journals, periodicals, pamphlets, newspapers etc. are being produced everyday. So, the volume of printed documents in any field of knowledge or subject has been increasing in such a magnitude that it is not possible for any reader to review regularly and consistently the huge mass of publications that could be of importance to him. Time is another barrier - though each individual reader develops his own methods for keeping himself abreast of the important literature in his own personal areas of interest and does some regular reading himself, he cannot spend much time as it would take to cover all the publications that might contain information important to him. Bibliography is an important tool which help a reader to find his desired information from these mass of publications. It not only gives information about his desired publications but also gives an idea about the work and amount of work in the area. It acts as liaison between books and users. Bibliography is the most important tool to disseminate information, and to facilitate the identification and location of literature in the subject areas. A complete idea about the work included in the bibliography can be gathered if it is an annotated one.

Types of Bibliography:

Various interests are served by the compilation of bibliographies. Different types of bibliographies are compiled with a view to serving a variety of purposes. Different types of bibliographies may be stated as follows:

1. General or Universal bibliography
2. National bibliography
3. Trade bibliography
4. Subject bibliography
5. Author bibliography and
6. Bibliography of book Rarities

Each of the above types of bibliography may further be divided as:

- a. Complete: May be complete comprising of works of a particular kind.
- b. Selective: Containing only a part of the works.
- c. Descriptive or Annotated: Having brief descriptive notes(annotations).
- d. Systematic or Enumerative: May be systematic or enumerative on a certain topic.
- e. Evaluative: With critical comment

Besides these, bibliographies may also be found in individual books, with periodical articles and in encyclopedias and other reference books.

Utility:

Bibliographies of any kind are useful sources as these help the researcher in his quest for materials. The utility of bibliographies may be stated thus:

- (a) They help locating material on the subject in question;

- (b) They provide a means of verifying such items as author's name, title of work, place of publication, publisher, date of publication, edition and number of pages, volume etc;
- (c) They indicate the scope of the subject if they are annotated; if the annotation is critical and evaluative, it comments upon the usefulness of the publication listed;
- (d) They analyse the materials including parts of books which cannot be done in the card catalogue and
- (e) They group publications according to form, location and period.

Bibliography of a library is the mirror of the library collection.

Annotated Bibliography:

As the present work is an annotated bibliography I would like to say something about annotated bibliography. Annotated bibliography is not a kind by itself - the word 'annotated' can be added with any kind of bibliography i.e., all kinds of above mentioned bibliographies may be compiled with some annotation and the bibliography which is compiled with annotations is called annotated bibliography.

Annotations may be: (i) Contents notes (chapter headings); (ii) Descriptive notes; (iii) Evaluating notes; (iv) Historical and bibliographical note and (v) Location of a copy or copies.

The purpose of annotation is to give the reader the chief value of the book for the treatment involved.

Importance:

The importance of bibliography cannot be over-emphasized. Specially in a country like Bangladesh where the research works are not many, the work of this sort of bibliography will provide immense value. Bibliography is the key to research work of any kind.

Bibliography helps the researchers to reach to their ultimate goal. In fact, the number of books in the world is increasing at a faster rate than the population of the world. However, the population dies while the books do not. Bibliographies have become a necessity in locating the book we need. We cannot work in the overpopulated world of books without the help of bibliographies.

Bibliographies are the indispensable guides to the world of books.

Background of the Thesis:

In order to get the students acquainted with problems, methods of research, stages in research, designing project and other relevant matters connected with the research project the Department of Library Science, University of Dhaka has been offering a course in the curriculum as 'Guided Research' of 75 marks.

Orientation classes were held as per routine which gave us an idea about the initial work of a thesis and thereby we took a definite course of work.

The selection committee of the Department assigned to me the "Annotated Bibliography of Theses completed in the Department of Library Science, University of Dhaka from 1959 to date".

I was placed under Mrs. Afifa Rahman, Assistant Professor, Department of Library Science, University of Dhaka who acted as my Supervisor and Guide. I frequently held meeting with her for consultation and instruction. Then I drew up an outline of my work and got it approved. Then I started my work and finished it.

Objectives:

The main objective of this work is to evaluate and analyse the research works done in the Department of Library Science, University of Dhaka. Secondly, when we were asked to submit titles of topics we faced great difficulties because there was no catalogue or a systematic list of works already done. For selecting the topic we consulted the available copies of theses in the Reference Section of Dhaka University Library and in the Seminar library of the Library Science Department, D.U. Considering these problems I decided to prepare a bibliography of works already done in the Department and submitted the title. I think the Department also felt for such a work.

RESEARCH METHODOLOGY

While preparing this bibliography a literature search was made by me. I held frequent meeting with my Supervisor. Then I prepared 5"x3" size cards for all the theses available in the Reference Section of the Dhaka University Library and in the Seminar Library of the Department of Library Science, University of Dhaka. Then I collected the list of theses completed year by year from the Departmental office and from the office of the Controller of Examinations, University of Dhaka and also from other reliable sources i.e., some previous works relating to this work. Then I arranged the cards first year-wise and compared with the collected lists and made necessary correction. Then I rearranged the cards under classification numbers and then alphabetically by author's names.

While doing this research work, I also surveyed the materials, evaluated their contents and presented in a functional manner so that needed information can be found out quickly without any difficulty.

PART: THREEResearch Activities in the Department of Library
Science, University of Dhaka

"Nothing is so difficult but that it may be found out by seeking". - Terence, Heuton Timorunenos, 1.675(Act iv, Section 2)

Research is definable as the use of standardised procedures in the search for knowledge. Research may also be defined as systematic investigation intended to add to available knowledge in a form that is communicable and verifiable. Research is the collection and analysis of original data to prove a hypothesis. A hypothesis is a declarative statement that if certain conditions exist then certain result will follow. Data must be collected for a specific purpose to prove something, by the researcher himself, not someone else and from original sources, not reprinted or quoted sources. In this way, facts and ideas not known before are discovered. Research is not accumulating data to see what might accidentally be discovered but rather an ordered and reasoned approach to observing. If research is done correctly, specific conditions are isolated, examined closely and knowledge of them enlarged.

Among other duties and responsibilities of a qualified and trained librarian having faculty of positive librarianship and scholarship in him, he is to know what is research, what are the methods of research and what are the types of research. So he must be fully equipped and trained in research methodologies. Considering this need the Department of Library Science of the University of Dhaka included "Guided Research" and 'Methods of Research in Library' in the syllabus, as a librarian has to do independent and constant in his library and also he is to guide a researcher.

While doing the content analysis of the works done in the Department of Library Science, this researcher presents three tables hereto. These tables will answer many questions including: Has the emphasis on any aspect or any topic changed during the period studied? Do the topics contribute meaningfully to the problems of library administration and organization of our country? What the research works reflect?

An overview of the above tables reveals certain trends in the research programme, the emphasis on particular type of research and particular kind of topic in the area of library education being imparted by the Department of Library Science.

CONCLUSION

There was a time when librarians of Bangladesh were a neglected community. This was because libraries in our country, in general, were also neglected units of education. The librarians stood and served unsung, unhonoured and unrecognised, But after the institution of the Department of Library Science in the University of Dhaka under the Faculty of Arts, the notion and ignorance of employers and planners have changed a lot. Not only for the inception of the Department but also for the specialised education the Department is imparting.

Due to the inclusion of papers like Research in Libraries and Guided Research, future librarians now studying are being well equipped with the research techniques and facets of research. On the other hand, as students are being given assignments on the problems and prospects of libraries and librarianship in Bangladesh, they are being acquainted directly with the pragmatic aspects of the problems. So the students writing a thesis are being benefited amply.

Secondly this research observed that number of publication producing "Library literature" on East Pakistan (Bangladesh) library field since 1947 is very few. In this respect research on librarianship in Bangladesh in true sense is done through these dissertations. Many valuable researches on Bangladesh Librarianship have been guided by the teachers of the Department and these researches are of immense importance. These studies, case studies, surveys are dependable and authentic "Library Literature" being produced in the Department. The planners of libraries, professional librarians, administrators will be immensely benefited if these research works are taken into consideration and utilised for the overall development of libraries and librarianship in the country.
